

London PropTech Show opens Complimentary Visitor Registrations for 2025 Edition

London, August 5 – Free visitor registration is now open for the highly anticipated London PropTech Show 2025, set to take place at Excel London on October 1–2, 2025. With just two months to go, its third edition is shaping up to be its most impactful yet. Uniting the most influential voices in property technology for two days of groundbreaking innovation, strategic dialogue, and high-value networking.

With over 3,000 attendees, over 70 exhibitors, 70 speakers, and 30 media partners and 100's of qualified buyers & proptech investors expected from across Europe and beyond, the London PropTech Show 2025 stands as the premier platform for exploring the technologies transforming the real estate industry. From smart cities to AI-driven buildings and decarbonisation, the show serves as a vital intersection for property developers, proptech founders, policymakers, investors, and enterprise tech leaders.

This year's agenda features a robust conference programme tackling the most urgent challenges and opportunities in real estate technology, from net-zero urbanism and smart infrastructure to digital construction and venture trends in PropTech. Attendees will hear first-hand from thought leaders from organisations including; JLL, Colliers, The City of London, Places for London, Innovate UK, British Property Federation, Gensler, Mace and more.

The conference sessions are not only informative but also interactive, sparking conversations that extend beyond the stage. Attendees will leave with new connections, collaborations and a clearer understanding of the innovations in real estate.

The exhibition floor offers a curated experience of the most exciting innovations in the PropTech space. Visitors can explore transformative technologies from companies encompassing automation, digital surveying, AI-powered platforms, and sustainable retrofitting solutions.

Also joining the line-up are emerging innovators like Budgerty, Data Technology, Dinggly, SpeedSight, and Credas, ensuring that the exhibition showcases not just established players but also agile disruptors redefining the rules of engagement in real estate.

Beyond the exhibitions and speaker sessions, the London PropTech Show is a catalyst for meaningful, results-driven networking. The event allows professionals from across the real estate technology space to build strategic partnerships and engage in high-impact dialogue. The London PropTech Show has become an important event for those looking to stay ahead in the rapidly evolving property landscape. Whether you're leading digital transformation at a major real estate firm, advising on smart city infrastructure, or investing in the next wave of PropTech solutions, this event offers unparalleled access to the ideas and people driving the industry forward.

Visitor Registration is free and now open. Don't miss your opportunity to be part of the global PropTech movement and connect with thousands of peers shaping the future of real estate.

Secure your spot and view the full speaker and exhibitor lineup at:

<https://tinyurl.com/3ntpe2r9>

Editor's Note:

The London PropTech Show has rapidly emerged as one of the most influential gatherings in the European real estate technology calendar. Now in its third year, the 2025 edition promises not only scale but substance—with an expanded speaker lineup, stronger cross-industry representation, and a focus on pragmatic innovation that addresses the sector's biggest pain points. This release offers a preview of the calibre of insights, exhibitors, and thought leadership the event consistently delivers. Journalists interested in media accreditation, exclusive interviews, or on-site coverage opportunities are encouraged to contact the press office.

Media Contact:

Valiant Business Media

Email: zeenish@valiantbmedia.com

Contact number: +44 (0)208 242 6566